DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Torii et al. (4,734,850).

As per claims 1, 4, and 5, Torii et al. teaches a data processing system including a plurality of execution units (E-units 1 and 6 in figure 1), which represent a “first processor” and a “second processor”. A “memory system” is shown in figure 2, including memory banks 47, 48 (“plurality of memory circuits”), which are independent of each other and are each accessible by the E-units 1 and 6. See column 2, line 67, to column 3, line 1. These FIFO memories of figure 2 are shared between and accessible by the execution units as described in column 2, lines 7-15. A mode indicating circuit 41 (“master controller”) provides a signal for repetitively indicating at a constant interval a write mode to banks 47, 48. See column 3, lines 26-43. A read/write control circuit 100 (“control unit”) generates a write address from a write control circuit 42 for write data (see column 4, line 60, to column 5, line 22) and a read address from read control circuit 43 for read data (see column 6, line 64 to column 7, line 11). Furthermore, Torii et al. teaches writing to one bank 47 simultaneously with reading from the other bank 48, and visa versa. See column 7, lines 46-52.

Art Unit: 2188

Torii et al. ensures that a particular bank is not simultaneously required for reading and writing through the use of a write enable input. If the write enable input is "1", then data is written into a particular bank. See column 6, lines 21-28. Since the bank is enabled for writing through the write enable input, it would be impossible to simultaneously read from the same bank (which would require a write enable input of "0"), thereby ensuring that input data and output data are not simultaneously required for writing and reading from one of the memory banks. The input to each bank's write enable input is generated by the read/write control circuit 100. See figure 2.

As per claim 2, Torii et al. teaches a write counter and a read counter for generating addresses. See claim 18, for example, and figures 4 and 5.

As per claim 3, Torii et al. teaches a write request input, WREQ, ("NXT_W") and a read request input, RREQ, ("NXT_R"). See column 4, lines 2-13, and column 6, lines 39-41.

Response to Arguments

3. Applicant's arguments filed 05 March 2003 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicant argues that Torii et al. does not teach that "all of [the] plurality of memory circuits are accessible by a first processor and a second processor" since "all of the multiple FIFO memory units (20-22) are not accessible by two respective E-units (4-6)". However, the Examiner is not asserting that the multiple FIFO memory units (20-22) represents the claimed "plurality of memory circuits". The memory banks 47, 48 (shown in figure 2), within the FIFO memory units, represent the claimed "plurality of memory circuits". And all of the memory circuits within a FIFO are accessible by a first E-unit and a second E-unit as set forth in column 3, lines 26-43.

Conclusion

4. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
